5 PROTECTIVE FACTORS

January 2022 Narrative

There are so many aspects of this program that fills my heart, I just cannot say "thank you" enough. Going to Magdalene Home once per week, I get to see young women when they first arrive, often at their very lowest point, and then, gradually, through much love, support and structure, some of these brave women blossom into productive, growing adults!

I met Shelbie a few weeks ago. Her baby, just a few days old, Shelbie was still trembling from coming off of meth. Scared and dazed from a whirlwind of giving birth and extended homelessness, Shelbie drank in the information I shared. But even more, she wept at the love being shown her from both myself and the staff of Magdalene Home.

Her scar-pocked face was a mirror of her wounded soul. Slowly she shared some of the trauma that she has lived through and is determined to not repeat upon her children. And yet, she has. This program allows me a platform to show her that it takes more than distain for a former life to not repeat it. It takes careful, purposeful steps through a variety of agencies and platforms to make informed decisions to heal the wounds of the past and find a healthy, productive path to her future. I pray each day, when I walk through Mag Home's purple front door, that she will still be there.

Still trying.

Still hoping.

Still seeking a better way.
